When is a creative not a creative?

When they're a leader.

Yes, I know that doesn't make sense, but this role is definitely a bit out of the ordinary.

Let me explain.

You'll be in charge of the creative output of the design team, but ideally you'll be passing on your years of experience to an eager beaver team looking for support and guidance.

You'll get to squeeze your creative juices of course, but the bulk of your time will be helping your team hit new heights.

Why would this interest you?

As your bored of the creative carousel where stuff gets dumped in your lap last minute, you have to work your magic with no budget plus come up with multiple treatments when we all know the one that looks prettiest is gonna get chosen rather than the one that actually works.

It's why you're looking around now. You value your experience and so should others.

It's time for you to be heard as well as seen which is a small change that makes a HUGE difference.

It's why you'll sit on the management team straight away, report into the MD and have your ideas acted upon rather than noted in the minutes.

They value creative as much as anything.
