When did you know it was time to move on from your current role?

Employment Type
Full-time

I mean the exact second you thought, "nope, I need out"

It wasn't recently was it?

Industry
Technical Production Company

I know this as you're still looking, as the role you really want doesn't seem to exist.

You know where I'm going here right...

Job Location
London/WFH, England

You love people, you love AV/tech/scenic, and you also love the cut and thrust of delivering presentations, winning new work and swanning around onsite overseeing things but...

Base Salary
£ £75,000 - £ £85,000 + £10k bonus

But you don't want to hunt for the work.

Nope, that's sales and this role isn't that.

Valid through
31.03.2025

The opportunities get delivered and you close them.

Leading things the way you want to lead things.

Working across all departments, helping the client with their objectives, collaborating with suppliers, getting the numbers to add up, all to bring the proposal to life.

On budget, on time, on point and onto the books.

Lovely.

This is your chance to stand on your own two feet, to finally have no one looking over your shoulder telling you what to do and how to do it.

This £10m t/o, 60 headcount business has been around for over 30 years and is flying.

They've got enquiries coming in from everywhere and now they need someone with your background, experience and technical knowhow to keep moving forward.

Told you that role existed.

If you want to take a lead role in things rather than being led, click apply and let's have a confidential chat.

Who knows where it will take you.

Don't worry if your CV isn't up to date, we can deal with that later.

Oh, I also run a £1k recommend a friend scheme, so please feel free to share with your connections.
